What is the Office of the Senior Practitioner?

- The Office of the Senior Practitioner was started as part of the new Disability Act 2006.
- The Office of the Senior Practitioner is here to protect the rights of people with a disability.
- The Senior Practitioner has special powers to make sure the best job is done for people with a disability.

What are restrictive plans?

- If a person with a disability hurts themselves or other people, staff may stop them from doing this by using a restrictive plan.
- Restrictive plans are things staff do and say to people with a disability that limit freedom of people with a disability.

What is the job of the Senior Practitioner?

The job of the Senior Practitioner is to:

- Work with staff to find better ways of supporting a person with a disability instead of using restrictive plans.
- Work with staff to find out why a person may be hurting themselves or others, or damaging property.

Who is the Senior Practitioner?

The Senior Practitioner is Jeffrey Chan. He has a team to help him do the job. You can contact Jeffrey on

Telephone: 9096 5043
Email: SeniorPractitioner@dhs.vic.gov